Tucson Airport Authority

The Tucson Airport Authority

The Tucson Airport Authority (TAA) airport system consists of Tucson International Airport (TUS) and Ryan Airfield (RYN). In addition to serving general aviation and military users, TUS serves the commercial passenger and air cargo needs of metro Tucson, southern Arizona and northern Sonora, Mexico. Ryan Airfield serves as a general aviation reliever airport for TUS and is popular among transient pilots for recreational use.

Tucson International Airport, about eight miles south of the city's central business district, encompasses about 8,400 acres. The airport campus includes 130 buildings with nearly 2.5 million square feet of space. About 60 tenants contribute more than $3 billion annually to the economic impact of southern Arizona, according to studies done by the University of Arizona Eller College of Business.

Ryan Airfield, 12 miles west of Tucson, covers 1,800 acres and accommodates 30 tenants providing a wide variety of services for general aviation and military users.

The TAA continues to seek out opportunities to continue to grow and maximize the economic impact of both Tucson International Airport and Ryan Airfield.

The TAA receives no local tax dollars. Operations are funded through revenues from parking, space rentals, land leases, airline landing fees, concessions and various user fees. Capital improvements, such as airfield and terminal construction, are funded through a combination of state and federal grants, federally-authorized passenger facility charges and operating revenues.

Our Mission

The mission of the Tucson Airport Authority is to promote aviation and foster economic development by strategically planning, developing and operating the most effective, efficient and safest airport system for southern Arizona.
